> Much threatening talk was heard prior to election day, but it all came to nothing. The balloting throughout the country took place quietly, and there were no demonstrations of a threatening character.

> Porfirio Diaz has been president of Mexico ever since his first election in 1877, and this reelection probably insures his remaining at the head of the government the rest of his life, as he is now nearly eighty years old. He was born September 30, 1830.
